Damaging Testimony Given at Her

Lawyer Townsend Indignant at a Morning Paper.

Trial To-Day.

Pretty Actress KatelSandsbury Tells How the Fat Medium Tried to Hire Her to Play "Spirit" and Disuppear Through a Trap-Door-A Sensation This Morn ing When the Hearing Began.

Counselor' John D. Townsend put a bit of spice into the trial of Princess Editha Lolita Diss Debar and her martial side partner, the 'General," at the opening of Judge Gildersleeve's Court this morning.

He complained, as an officer of the court, that he had been wronged in an article in a morning paper, which stated that he had spirited away one of the principal witnesses for the prosecution. He demanded that the court investigate and punish either the paper or himself.

Assistant District-Attorney Dos Passos said the story was unfounded, and the matter was dropped.

The first witness of the day was a pretty, plump and petite brunette in a Gobelin blue gown, frizzes and a black lace bonnet.

She said she was Mrs. Kate Sandsbury, of Baltimore, an actress, who met the madame in 1878 or 1879 in Baltimore, when she introduced herself as the daughter of Prof. Salomon. In 1883 she met her again in this city and the madame then told her that she had been married to a M. Messant (pronounced Missong) and that her husband was dead.

YOUNG LAWBENCE IN COURT, Later still she lived with the madame and the General, as their guest, at Broadway and Forty-third street, and here the madame pro-posed to her that she help her in Spiritualistic

The little actress was to materi lize as a spirit in a cabinet and disappear through a trap-door when necessary.

At this testimony the bulky spirit broker leaned over the table to Mr. Townsend and in a fat whisyer remarked: "That is not in my line!"

This testimony caused consternation among the Spiritualistic supporters of the madame, and her lawyer only sufficiently recovered from its effects to offer an offensive question, and the cross-examination brought out nothing to injure the damaging statements on the direct examination.

Mrs. Sandsbury never had "materialized" and refused to do so for the madame. She was out of employment and madame's guest for three months, but paid her board afterward. She had been a chorus girl with McCaul. Mrs. Jennie Hanion, a matronly woman past middle age, testified that she knew the Salomons during the war, in Brooklyn. The defendant was one of them, and was about seventeen y ars of age. She was not so stout as now, but 'er mother was very stout.

At this jun ture the fluffy madame grew restless and de vanded in a stage whisper, "Produce the la 'y! Produce the lady!"

With this cue 'Mr. Townsend demanded that Mrs. Salomon 'e produced. Mr. Davis explained tha Mrs. alomon was over seventy years of age and livin, in Kentucky.

Mrs. Hanlon also byarded in Yonkers at the same place with Le'a Montez and her maid.

A comparison of sizes and temperaments between Loia Moutez and her alleged daughter followed. Mr. Davis asked the madame to stand up. She did so with poor grace, remarking that she was "five feet two."

James W. Randolph, a theatrical manager since 1873, test-fied that he met Mme. Diss Debar at Mr. Marsh's house in April last. He called to arrange for putting her on exhibition as a Spiritualitic medium. He found her on the third floor, in her room with the "General."

Privately madame offered to accept him for her manager, the two to divide the profits of their snow equally. Then Mr. Marsh entered the room and madame said to him:

which seems to say: "Mr. Rando ph must be our manager."

Mr. Marsh murmured in return something about obeying the will of the holy spirits, and the bargain was sealed but not signed. Next day, at a second visit, she said: "Now you are my manager and confidential man How do you like my house?"

Randolph replied that there were no flies on her. She must be pretty smart to get the best of Mr. Marsh.

She replied: "I can give you fellows with sawdust on your feet pointers on how to work

"This is nothing. I'll have $150,000 more before the end of April, and you'll be in with it."

The witness asked her, "Do you mean to say t. at I am to have half of anything you get out of Marsh?"

And she assented "every dollar. But the Lawrences are calling it blackmail."

She said Marsh must be handled quietly, and wanted me to get his consent to put the spirit pictures on exhibition.

Witness remarked that there were not sueugh of the pictures, and madame repited:

FLAMES IN GREENPOINT.

An Oil Pipe Bursts and a Blacksmith Shop

Shortly after 9 o'clock this morning as alarm of fire was sounded from the corner of Oakland street and Greenpoint avenues. When the firemen arrived they found that one of the receiving tanks of the Pratt Company's oil works had exploded and was burning fiercely.

Taking in the situation at a glance, a second alarm was immediately sent in. The firemen then set at once to work to try and stay the progress of the flames.

All the reserves of the Seventh Precinct, under Cant. Rhodes, went to the scene and kept back the immense crowd of spectators.

It was feared that the fire would reach the immense supply pipe which runs the oil from Weehawken through New York to Green point.

The fire was got under control, however, before it reached the main tank.
The fire did communicate with a black-smith shop near by, which was soon in flames. In the course of an hour the flames were checked,

When Alderman Fitzsimmons opened his eyes he saw a stranger diving into the pockets of his trousers. The Alderman jumped up and seized him. Campbell was aroused and he and the Alderman had a collar-and-elbow time of it with the thief. But they finally got him on the floor.

The Alderman and his roommate took their prisoner downstairs and handed him over to a policeman. The sneak thief gave his name as George Howard. He had $105 in his pockets.

LAST NIGHT AND TO-DAY AT ST. LOUIS. ed Heads, Hourse Thronts Revived by the Scenes in Convention.

ST. LOUIS, June 7.—There were swelled seads in St. Louis this morning, and the best didn't make them any pleasanter to possess. It is one of those mornings when some one eems to have pre-empted all the air and gotten it stored away somewhere over night and the weary delegates and music-makers and shouters are looking forward in misery to the prospect which greets them here to-day of staying on in the town and wrestling with a vexations dead-lock.

People thought last night that Gray was besten, and suspicious ones said Gov. White, of California, was figuring to secure for himself the Vice-Presidential nomination. His concession to Voorhees in the convention coupled with the action of the New York County Democracy in coming out for Gray as against Thurman were desined significant. White was about the corridors of the Southern Hotel until 1 or 2 in the morning.

Southern Hotel until I or 2 in the morning, and people turned as he passed to look again at that square, heavy, resolute face and that substantial frame clad in close-fitting broadcloth. All night long bands of men were going about yelling for Thurman. The frequency of yells for Stevenson was noticeable. When the Gray cohorts showed up marching from one hotel to another they were painfully depleted and the veterans looked jaded and forlorn. Many of the Indiana contingent who for three days had been screaming the membranes off their throats left for home yesterday evening wearied out in fighting a forlorn hope.

The work which Voorhees sought to have done when he fought for an adjournment in the convention was accomplished, not so much by the waving of bauners and the yelling of hoodlums as by quiet speeches by intelligent men in delegation rooms.

St. Louis does not appear to weary of its targain, but is turning all the pennies that it ean. Beer is consumed at a rate that is appalling. A youth who, clad in light trousers, iashionable cutaway coat and a light derby, stood on too of a cab in front of the Lindell House at 2 o'clock this morning and, waving his gloves in one hand and his hat in the other, invited the crowd to come up and kiss him for his mother, while a tired-out band ranged on the sidewalk played patriotic airs for every one's else discomfort, was a fair example of the night scenes that are transpiring in the streets of the city.

Policemen are lenient. They arrest nobody. Law may not be a dead letter, but it is a comatose one. Men who can scarcely write their names are ponderous with political knowledge, and they talk in load tones on street corners of national issues. They roll the resonant phrase, "The Democracy of this country." under their tongues as a sweet morsel.

The front rows of the galleries of Convenof this country," under their tongues as a sweet morsel.

The front rows of the galleries of Convention Hall were filled with people at 9 o'clock. Fans were in steady motion. The hot sun was beating down through the big windows of the roof and the air was filled with the strains of the "Bohemian Girl."

The first delegate to show himself was the inevitable White, of California. His well-brushed silk hat on the back of his head, his thick features shiny with perspiration, he walked up and down the aisle with the air he has all the time of a man waiting. Other delegates coming in removed their hats, but White and his tile were inseparable.

By and by he climbed the red carpeted stairs, sat down at the clerk's desk and entered into earnest conversation with the chief stenographer. Then he borrowed a pencil and indited a resolution.

At 9.30 the hall was filling up rapidly. The ceremony of draping the banner staffs with bandamia gray ribbons, buts and other

At 9.30 the hall was filling up rapidly. The ceremony of draping the banner staffs with bandanas, gray ribbons, hats and other tokens was again gone through with, more as a natter of course than anything else. A few perfunctory cheers greated it, and the Gray gonfalons were waving from the galleries.

Venerable Dr. R. G. Brank, of St. Louis, clasped his hands before him and offered prayer.

Henry M. Watterson, bearing the fruits of the Platform Committee's deliberations, was then introduced by the Chair, and the neise the convention made showed it was not scray to see him. When he remarked that the resolutions had been agreed upon enanimously by the committee, there was along cheer, and when Clerk Thomas Petit, whe had mounted the coair, read in a clear, far-reaching voice the opening sentences of every clause, clearing up, as they did, the meaning of the 1884 platform, it was met with a loud demonstration.

Mr. Petit's reading gave an added virtue to the resolutions. He is Reading Clerk in the House of Representatives and knows to a nicety the necessities of the business. His every word was as clean cut as a gem.

As the crowd in the building grew greater and they remembered that the tariff had been patched up and that the Vice-Presidency was the big issue of the day's deliberation, the cheering over the Thurman emblems waxed louder.

the big issue of the day's deliberation, the cheering over the Thurman emblems waxed londer.

Men on the floor mopping their brows asked each other, "How long will it last today?" Some said it would be all over in an hour, for it was whispered that the leaders had decided the original siste would be put through and Thurman nominated at once.

Others thought there would be a struggle. Tammany had ordered its train for 3 o'clock and by 4 expected to be beyond the Mississippi speeding towards home.

The County Democracy talked of waiting till to-morrow morning.

When, after the floor was crowded and the convention about to begin, a bandanna was tossed up in New York's standard, people who had wondered what would come of the split in the Empire State delegation cheered wildly, and as State after State came up solid with a bandanna in the hand of each delegate the word passed from mouth to mouth: "That settles it," but still the Indiana men were waving their flags of grey.

At 10.30 Chairman Collins rapped the body to order.

At 10.30 Chairman Collins rapped the body to order.

Four or five pages down in the platform the clerk met with a hard knot which was too much for him. "Pass it," oried voices from the platform, and he went on.

When the subject of taxation was reached the reading was often interrupted by applause. The paragraph on trusts received its due share of attention. Among the delegates there was little enthusiasm.

At the close of the reading Henry Watterson was on the platform. "Fellow Democrats." he said as the cheering subsided, "we bring you a platform upon which Democrats may stand without feeling that they are away from home. It embodies a statement of facts incontrovertible. It gives to reform a language which would be spoken alike in New Jersey and Iowa, Massachusetts and Texas."

Thanks to Grover Cleveland—(cheers.)—the attention of the country, woosed by others so long in vs. n. hrs been won. The vaice of the occupe will become its hands, but they will be the hands of construction, not of destruction."

Senator Gorman, who spoke next, was interrupted by commotion under the left gallery. The Senator resumed his discussion of the tariff. He said: "We will hold every Democrat to the cardinal principle of the party, but give him freedom of conscience. With such a principle and such a candidate, we march forth to battle and are certain of victory."

we march forth to battle and are certain of victory."

Mr. Tarpey, of California, had a red bandenna in h s hand when he rose to nominate Thurman. He spoke a long piece. As he went on enumerating the virtues of the noblest Roman the Gray men filled in the pauses of this s, each with cheers for their candidate. When he said, "Gentlemen, I nominate the one man who can sweep the country." He paused for a second before naming Thurman, The Indianians shouted with all their lungs: "Gray! Gray! Gray!" The delegates who set under the Thurman banners were dumber that the states of the second base there is the second base and the second second base and the second second base and the second second base the second seco

"Gray! Gray! The delegates who set under the Thurman banners were dumb as they listened to the nonmantion speech. The loudest cheers were at its close, and Chairman Collins had to tell the galleries to behave themselves.

Delegate Patterson covered himself with glory in the speech he made on the name of Gen. Black, No one anticipated what the end would be. After praising Gen. Black's record he spoke of the growing Thurman boom. The audience, which had expected a nomination, began to expect a withdrawal, and was sure of it when Gen. Black's telegram was read.

The finale of Mr. Patterson's speech, simply leaving the name with the convention, was a masterpiece of tact and g.acefulness, and the convention shouted its appreciation of the movement.

Madame said the picture business was getting stale, any way, and related that a Mr. Kipp had bought a valuable statue abroad, and a finger had become detached, worrying Mr. Kipp. Madame had restored the finger, even to a small blood vein, and got $3,000 for it, doing it by spirit power.

She related, the witness aid, that Marsh had been instructed by her that if he read any papers other than religious papers his soul would be in outer darkness for 30,000 years. If he read religious papers only he would stand outside the gates only twenty-four hours.

On cross-examination Randolph admitted having written to Marsh that he (Randolph) had exposed the medium and asked for a re-

Among the party were Mr. and Mrs. Blaine Gail Hamilton, Dr. Eaton and Walter Damrosch, the young conductor of New York. They started in fine weather. Quite a large crowd of Americans saw them off in their coach-and-four in front of the Hotel Metropole. They propose to be gone twenty days, winding up at Cluny Castle, Scotland, which Mr. Carnegie has rented for the season. Mr. Blaine was in excellent spirits and health and appeared to be quite active. There was a lively scene at the departure, spectators and excursionists cheering heart-GEN. SHERIDAN NOT SO WELL.

doing their work. Pulse, 114; respiration, 32.

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] GLENS FALLS. June 7. - At Kingsbury. about five miles east of Glens Falls, a tornado caused great damage last evening. It was accompanied by rain, thunder and lightning and hail. A barn 40 by 80 feet, owned by William Munger, was blown down. In the barn were fifteen cows, three or four calves and several wagons. Cornelius Connors had just gone into the barn to commence miking the cows. Mr. Connors and the live stock were in the basement of the barn. The tornado came from the West and was about a half mile wide. It struck Munger's barn, and in the twinkling of an eye the structure was a mass of broken boards and timbers. Some of the timbers fell on a feed-box, and that was all that saved Connors's life, as he was under them. He was taken out seriously hurt. Three cows were killed; the others escaped with slight bruises, so far as could be learned. The calves were uninjured.

About a mile east of Munger's place the roof of Alfred Sherman's barn was blown off and carried across the road. The chimneys of his house were blown off.

A portion of the roof and the chimneys of William Roark's house in that neighborhood were blown away and his barn was twisted partly around.

In the path of the storm trees were uprooted and fences levelled.

At Goodspeedville, near Glens Falls, lightning struck the residence of Mrs. Mary Sherman. It passed down the chimney, shattered the side of the house and splintered the foundation.

The same electrical discharge, or a portion William Munger, was blown down. In the foundation.

The same electrical discharge, or a portion of it, struck Mrs. Sherman's dress, passed through it and through the stocking on her right foot, tore open the shoe and burned her foot from heel to toe. She was prostrated. Mrs. Frank Sisson, who was in the house, had her right arm burned at the same time from elbow to fingers. She was also consid-arably shocked.

Across the street from Mrs. Sherman's house Roger Hopkins resided. His daugh-ter, either from shock or fright, was thrown into violent spasms.

THE CIGARETTE GIRLS' STRIKE. It Is Amicably Settled and the Girls All Re-The difficulty at W. Duke, Sons & Co.'s cigarette manufactory, at First avenue and Twenty-ninth street, was amicably adjusted

Twenty-ninth street, was amicably adjusted this forenoon through the kindly offices of Ernest Bohm, Secretary of the Central Labor Union, and a committee of the Excelstor Labor Club, to which the twenty-five young women who struck are attached.

The girls who were removed from the machine room to the hand-work department were given the privilege of returning, and the firm gave the foreman to understand that he must treat the girls in his charge in a respectful manner.

The Measrs. Duke were not aware that there had been any real cause for complaint on the part of the girls until the strike occurred. All hands returned to work at once after the settlement was made,
